

Joshua Meltzer is First Secretary at the Embassy of Australia in Washington DC where Joshua is responsible for climate change and energy policy. Before commencing his posting in Washington DC, Joshua was an international trade lawyer in the Australian Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade, where he helped negotiate free trade agreements and provided legal advice on Australia's international trade commitments. Prior to joining the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade, Joshua completed a Masters in Law at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor and a Bachelor of Laws and Commerce Degree at the Monash University in Melbourne, Australia. Joshua has also interned in the Legal Affairs Division at the World Trade Organization and in the UN International Law Commission.